INSURANCE SWINDLERS.

Pitezel Now Reported to be Still in the Land of the Living.

HOWE'S LAW PARTNER ARRIVES.

It Is Believed That the Accused Lawyer Himself, Whom Lawyer McDonald Describes as an Office Boy, Is Also in or Near Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 22.—H. H. Holmes, the man of many aliases, conspiracies and possibly murders, passed a very quiet and restful night in his cell at the central station. He maintains the calm and indifferent air which caused a detective to remark that he was the "coolest and most consummate criminal" he ever met in the course of his experience.

Mrs. Pitezel passed a very distressing night, and in the morning the matron was forced to call in the services of Dr. Andrews. He found the woman suffering from an attack of nervous prostration. Medicine was prescribed, but the close confinement and incessant worriment over her position may possibly require her removal to a hospital. She is now confined in what is termed the "hospital cell." Her daughter Meda and the little child are in the same cell with her.

If information received by President Fouse, of the Fidelity Mutual Insurance company, is correct, Pitezel is alive, or, at any rate, was alive subsequent to the time he is said to have died or been killed. Mr. Fouse received a telegram, he says, from a Chicago representative, who said that a man named Ryan had seen Pitezel less than two weeks ago. Ryan is described as a well known business man, and he had a drink with Pitezel when he met him. Ryan informed the Chicago representative that he could not possibly have been mistaken. He did not know where Pitezel was going. Mr. Fouse thinks that within the next ten days Pitezel will show up in this city.

The only new development in the star conspiracy case was the arrival last night of McDonald, the ex-assistant district attorney of St. Louis, and law partner of Jepha D. Howe, who acted as counsel for Holmes. Howe did not make his appearance, but McDonald called on Police Superintendent Linden and told him that his partner was on his way here. The impression is, however, that Howe is either now in the city or nearby, and that he resorted to this device to avoid a night in a cell. McDonald emphatically denied any complicity in the affair, either by Howe or himself. The former, he added, was merely an office boy in his employ, and had been influenced by Holmes, but when indicted for conspiracy McDonald, according to that lawyer's story, advised him to at once come to Philadelphia and clear himself, and his advice was promptly acted upon.

HOLMES' MANY CRIMES.

A Reputable Chicago Citizen Believes He Has Murdered Three Women.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—Following close to the mysterious disappearance of the Williams sisters at the hands of Holmes, the life insurance swindler, comes a third woman victim—Miss Kate Durkee. Kate Durkee had property; the documents representing the property came into the hands of H. H. Holmes, by theft; the woman mysteriously disappeared, and Holmes showed title to the property. A year ago twenty five creditors of H. H. Holmes met at the office of George B. Chamberlain and made a desperate effort to find out who and where Miss Durkee was. It was supposed at that time that she was an accomplice of Holmes, and that the property illegally obtained was being transferred into her name, and the creditors wished to reach it. Suddenly Kate Durkee dropped quietly and entirely from sight and, like the Williams sisters, has left no trace behind her.

"I believe she was murdered," said Mr. Chamberlin in speaking of the matter today. "I believe also that both of the Williams sister were murdered, and I make this statement on the strength, not of published reports, but what I know personally of the matter."

Mr. Chamberlin, who is proprietor of the Lafayette Mercantile Agency, began his investigations of Holmes a year ago.

Another Murder Story Exploded.

OMAHA, Neb., Nov 22.—In an elegant residence at No. 4520 Burdett street, this city, lives Miss Kate Durkee, a handsome blonde of about 30. She has lived here six years with her brother, who is assistant auditor of the Burlington Railroad company. She expressed surprise when a newspaper man called on her and asked concerning her connection with Holmes. She had not heard of his trouble. She was on intimate terms with the Holmes family in Chicago, she said. She never heard of but one wife. She recently visited Mrs. Holmes in Chicago, and had Holmes transfer a piece of property for her. She refused to give out any of the details, fearing some kind of trouble.

Pitezel Formerly a Detective.

ST. JOSEPH, Mo., Nov 22.—Joseph Pitezel, who is the center of attraction in the Philadelphia insurance swindle, was a former resident of this city, and left here about three years ago under a cloud. While here he and a man named John Carpenter conducted a detective agency and made a number of important captures, one notable case being that of working up and securing the arrest of noted criminals who fired buildings at Garden Grove, Iowa, and shot an officer while escaping. He left here owing considerable money.

Rheumatism Cured in a Day.

ORGANIZED FOR SWINDLING.

Bought Lumber on Time. Sold at Ruinous Prices, Then Decamped.

TOLEDO, O., Nov. 22.—Samuel G. Gates, of Bay City, Mich., one of the numerous Michigan lumber men who are alleged to have been swindled through the operation of individuals styling themselves the Pennsylvania Land and Lumber company, with headquarters at Pittsburg, yesterday attached the sum of $12,270, which has been in the keeping of the Home Savings bank deposit vaults of this city since Nov. 6.

William E. Delaney, Mrs. John Harris, Jennie Emerson, Margaret Christy and Matilda Gerst, are named as defendants in the attachment proceedings and it is alleged the money was deposited here by Mrs. Harris, the $12,270 representing, it is claimed, the ill gotten gains of an organized band of swindlers, travelling and operating under the guise of upright business men and women. The agents of the company bought lumber in Michigan by the wholesale, without giving any returns, shipped the lumber out of the Saginaw valley, sold it at ruinous prices for cash and decamped.

The most sensational feature of the whole case is the claim of Mrs. Harris, who has been for some time past dangerously ill in Pittsburg, that she was poisoned by one of her co-swindlers for revealing as much of the whole plot as was necessary to put the detectives on the right track. At the time she was taken ill, she says, she was preparing to come to Toledo and turn over the money to the company's creditors.

An Athlete's Fatal Fall.

BOSTON, Nov. 22.—Frank E. Godfrey, acting assistant superintendent of the gymnasium of the Boston Young Men's Christian union, fell and broke his neck last night while working in the gymnasium. He was standing on the shoulder of a companion, and trying to turn a somersault in the air from that position. While in that position he slipped and fell. He was also employed at the studio of Kitson, the sculptor, and had served as a model for the statue representing the "Ideal of the American Student," exhibited at the World's fair. He died a few minutes after the accident. He was about 25 years old, and unmarried.

Taylor Not Guilty of Murder.

RIDGWAY, Pa., Nov. 22.—The trial of H. C. Taylor, who killed D. C. McCauley on the street in Ridway on Feb. 28, has ended in the acquittal of the defendant. President Judge C. A. Mayer took the case from the jury and rendered this verdict, there being no evidence to sustain the charge of voluntary manslaughter. A case of involuntary manslaughter was admitted by the court, but as that did not form part of the indictment Taylor was declared not guilty. The trial lasted fifteen hours. There was a large attendance, and much interest was manifested by the public during the trial.

The Pit Boss Censured.

WHITING, W. Va., Nov. 22.—The coroner's jury in the case of the seven miners killed in the Branch mines, on the Pan Handle road, on Tuesday, finished its labors late last evening. Expert miners made an examination into the workings where the explosion took place, and testified that it was due to an overcharge of powder, which ignited the coal dust, and that the pit boss was censurable. Mine Inspector Herr should also be censured for ordering this done on his visit to the mine last week.

Father Kolasewski Seeks Reinstatment.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—Rev. Father A. F. Kolasewski, who was excommunicated from the Catholic church as a result of the Polish church war in this city, has gone to Washington. It is said that his mission there is to have an interview with Mgr. Satolli and possibly seek reinstatement in the Roman church. Kolasewski, as a result of the church war, organized what is known as the American Catholic church.

Kansas' Legislature Reduced.

TOPEKA, Kan., Nov. 22.—Three counties in Kansas lose their representatives. The next Kansas house of representatives, which will elect a United States senator in January, will thus have but 122 members, instead of 125. A state law provides that no county casting less than 200 votes should be entitled to a representative. The official returns show that Grant county cast but 164 votes, Stevens 179, and Seward 197.

To Demand a Sheriff's Removal.

MEMPHIS, Nov. 22.—Judge Cooper took the bull by the horns in the lynching case yesterday, and forced Butch McCarver, the obstreperous witness, to testify. Ex-Attorney General Peters created a sensation in court by denouncing the sheriff for working in the interests of lynchers and trying to cheat justice. A mass meeting of citizens has been called to demand the removal of the sheriff.

An Adventurer Sent to Jail.

DENVER, Nov 22.—Clarence W. Clark, the adventurer from New York, who induced Gertrude Hutchins to marry him after two days' acquaintance, was yesterday sentenced to jail for petty larceny, and bound over to the district court in $300 for perjury in procuring a marriage license. Gertrude is repentant and wants a divorce.

A Household Treasure.

D. W. Fuller, of Canajoharie, N.Y., says that he always keeps Dr. King's New Discovery in the house and his family has always found the very best results follow its use; that he would not be without it, if procurable G.A. Dykeman Druggist, Catskill, N.Y. says that Dr. King's New Discovery is undoubtedly the best Cough remedy; that he has used it in his family for eight years, and it has never failed to do all that is claimed for it Why not try a remedy so long tried and tested. Trial bottles free at McMonagle and Rogers' Drug store. Regular size 50c. and $1.00.

COLONEL COIT'S DEFENSE.

Declares the Court House Was Threatened When His Soldiers Fired.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22.—The court of inquiry yesterday in the Coit case heard evidence to this effect from Colonel Coit: He was not at the door where the firing occurred. Later he received telephone message to get his men out, as the house was to be blown up with dynamite. Colonel Coit laid stress on the fact that the orders to fire in case the doors were broken or a stone was thrown or a shot fired at the men were given by himself. His reason for keeping the men in the house after the negro had been taken there was to avoid the possibility of stones being thrown at the men, thus necessitating firing by them, and perhaps the killing of innocent people. He also believed the withdrawal of troops to the house would result in less excitement outside.

In answer to a question relating to the statements that he was intoxicated, Colonel Coit testified that he had not entered a saloon during the day, but on account of being cold in the evening Surgeon Guerin prescribed not to exceed two tablespoonfuls of stimulant, and that was all the liquor he saw or drank at Washington Court House. He did not see any of his men intoxicated, nor did he see liquor in possession of any of them.

When the order to load was given in the afternoon the crowd numbered nearly 2,000. They were threatening the lives of Sheriff Cook and himself. The men were given positive orders when they first went there not to enter saloons. Colonel Coit said he was not given assistance by the local police, and that the authority to load and fire was found in the discretion given to commanding officers in the regulations.

Upholding the Czarlike Judge.

OKLAHOMA CITY, O. T., Nov. 22.—The grand jury has reported indictments against Probate Judge Stewart and E. E. Brown and J. J. Burke, editors of The Times-Journal. The indictment against Stewart was for assisting prisoners to escape from jail, he having released Burke and Brown, who were jailed by Judge Scott for contempt of court. The indictment against Burke and Brown was for escaping from jail. W. R. Harper, probate judge-elect, and Judge L. Brown, both prominent attorneys, were also indicted for contempt for publicly commenting on a case in court. All parties were arrested, and there is much excitement. The whole matter grows out of District Judge Scott's attempting to keep everybody from commenting in any way on his actions in court.

Anarchy Reigns in the Soudan.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—A dispatch from Cairo says that Father Rossignoli, the last of the priests who were captured by the Mahdists after the fall of El Obeid, and whose escape from Omdurman, in the Soudan, and arrival at Assouan were reported yesterday, escaped by feigning sickness. He was allowed to go to Khartoum for a change of air, from which place he fled to Berber, where his guide was imprisoned on suspicion of harboring a Christian. Father Rossignoli bribed the jailer, and both he and his guide escaped from Berber, and reached Assouan after a perilous journey. Father Rossignoli, who is in feeble health, states that anarchy reigns in the Soudan.

The Relief Work at Hinckley.

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 22.—The state relief commission, at its meeting at Hinckley, closed up its work for this year. The treasury is now empty, but the commission will furnish relief until the legislature meets, when that body will be asked to make appropriation. The work at Sandstone will not be closed for two weeks. The commission has used over 2,000,000 feet of lumber, and has built 275 houses. Complete outfits of furniture and other household goods have been supplied to over 150 families. Where the commission expected to take care of 1,500 people they have furnished relief for at least 2,400. There is now no suffering.

Serious Accident to a Trolley Car.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 22.—An electric car on Wylie avenue became unmanageable yesterday and dashed down the steep grade at terrific speed. At Logan street it collided with a cable car, and the passengers on both cars were all more or less injured, and it is feared some of their injuries may prove fatal. It was miraculous that no one was killed outright. Mrs. H. C. Jones was perhaps the most seriously hurt. She was thrown against the stove and was somewhat cut about the face. Mrs. Sallade and Mrs. Kate Keefe were dangerously injured.

A Home for Aged Knights of Pythias.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 22.—Representatives of thirty-one lodges of Knights of Pythias from twenty-three counties in western Pennsylvania held a meeting here last evening to make preliminary arrangements for establishing a Knights of Pythias home for aged knights, their widows and children. Applications will be made for a charter, and the work will be pushed forward rapidly. The home will cost $40,000, and will be located in Allegheny county.

Specimen Cases.

S. H. Clifford, New Cassel, Wis., was troubled with Neuralgia and Rheumatism, his Stomach was disordered, his Liver was affected to an alarming degree, appetite fell away, and he was terribly reduced in flesh and strength. Three bottles of Electric Bitters cured him.

Edward Shepherd, Harrisburg, Ill. had a running sore on his leg of eight years' standing. Used three bottles of Electric Bitters and seven boxes of Bucklin's Arnica Salve, and his leg is sound and well. John Sdeaker, Catawba, O., had five large fever sores on his leg, and the doctors said he was incurable. One bottle of Electric Bitters and one box of Bucklin's Arnica Salve cured him entirely. Sold at McMonagle & Rogers Drug store.

THE INDIAN A FAILURE.

So Says the Report of the Dawes Indian Commission.

HE IS NOT FIT FOR CITIZENSHIP.

The "Five Civilized Tribes" Have Failed to Perform Their Part of the Contract Which Guaranteed Them Self Government, and the Commission Recommends Confiscation

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—The report of the commissioners on the five civilized tribes to the secretary of the interior recommends the revocation of the power of self government granted by the United States. The proposition made to them was to divide the land among the Indians, except town sites, coal and mineral lands, which were to be sold and the proceeds divided. A homestead for each citizen was to be made inalienable for twenty-five years or longer. Safeguards for the interest of the tribe were included. After division a territorial government was to be formed by congress and approved by the Indian government.

The Indians refused to entertain these propositions, and declined to sell the lands. The report says that complications are growing up in the title to coal lands which will lead to endless litigation. The full-bloods are less fit for citizenship than they were twenty years ago, and there is little hope that they will improve. The Indians invite and induce white people to come into the territory, there being 250,000 white people there, who cannot be called intruders, and the Indians cannot fairly ask the United States to remove them. The treaty stipulation for equal division of the lands, it is pointed out, is flagrantly and widely violated, large tracts being in control of the leaders, while the real Indian is powerless to secure any part of his common property.

The failure of the tribal government, it is said, makes it impossible to force the treaty provisions. A vivid picture is given of the lawless condition of affairs in the territory. Many private persons entitled to benefit from the payments by the government, it is stated, never receive any money, while agents are growing rich.

The report concludes as follows: "The United States put the title to a domain of countless wealth and unmeasured resources in these several tribes or nationalities, but it was a conveyance in trust for specific uses, clearly indicated in the treaties themselves, and for no other purpose. It was for the use and enjoyment in common of each and every citizen of his tribe of each and every part of the territory.

"The tribes can make no other use of it. They have no power to grant it to any one, or to grant to any one an exclusive use of any portion of it. The tribal governments have wholly perverted their high trust, and it is the plain duty of the United States to enforce the trust it has so created and recover for its original uses the domain and all the gains derived from the perversion of the trust, or discharge the trustee.

"The United States also granted to these tribes the power of self government, not to conflict with the constitution. They have demonstrated their incapacity to so govern themselves, and no higher duty can rest upon the government that granted this authority than to revoke it, when it has so lamentably failed."

Reorganizing China's Army.

SHANGHAI, Nov. 22.—The reform of the Chinese army proceeds with difficulty. A few European officers are engaged in the preliminaries of the reorganization. There is no central authority. Prince Kung, uncle of the emperor and head of the Tsung li-Yamen, the admiralty, etc., is reserved in the exercise of his power, finding it hard to contend against Chinese obstruction. Viceroy Li Hung Chang shows no sign of leaving Tientsin. The report of the suicide of Commodore Lin Tai Sau, commander of the Chinese battleship Chen Yuen, which was sunk by the Japanese in the battle of the Yalu, has been confirmed.

Strong Men Failed to Agree on Terms.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 22.—The managers of Eugene Sandow and Irwin Montgomery met here to put up their money on a test of strength. Both showed the color of their money, but afterward they disagreed on the conditions, so that the test was declared off. Sandow wanted only heavy weight business, and Montgomery wanted athletic feats included.

Use It In Time.

Catarrh starts in the nasal passages, affecting eyes, ears and throat and is in fact, the great enemy of the mucous membrane. Neglected colds in the head almost invariably precede catarrh, causing, an excessive flow of mucus, and if the mucus discharge becomes interrupted the disagreeable results of catarrh will follow, such as bad breath, severe pain across forehead and about the eyes, a roaring and buzzing sound in the ears and oftentimes a very offensive discharge. Ely's Cream Balm is the acknowledged cure for these troubles.

THE W. C. T. U. ADJOURNS.

Resolutions of Thanks to Republicans, Democrats and Populists.

CLEVELAND, Nov. 22.—At the final session of the Women's Christian Temperance union yesterday afternoon a long discussion was started by a resolution protesting against putting arms in the hands of boys. Other resolutions adopted were one deploring the Armenian fiasco and advocating international protection, one denouncing the increase of military education in public schools, colleges and universities, and one, which raised much controversy, thanking the populists for the suffrage plank in the platform in Kansas, thanking the Republicans for the same thing in Colorado, and thanking the Democrats of the south for bringing a large area under local option laws. The latter resolution was adopted after much discussion. A constitutional amendment was adopted providing that biennial sessions can be held when deemed advisable.

The close of the convention was quite impressive. Miss Willard spoke briefly thanking the delegates for their kindness to her, and telling them how strong and well she felt. Adjournment was moved by Mrs. Forbes, of Connecticut, and the motion was carried.

"God Be With You Till We Meet Again" and the doxology were sung and Miss Carrie Smith pronounced the benediction.

Immediately after adjournment Miss Willard was asked in what city the next convention would be held. She said it was not decided, but that it looks like Baltimore.

A Small Premium on Gold.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The general interest in the bond issue and the possible purchasers started a number of rumors that gold was at a premium already, and that there was no knowing where it would go to. Nesslage, Colgate & Co., dealers in money, did sell an order of $50,000 in gold at one-eighth of one per cent. advance, but they did not consider it worth calling a premium. Other dealers in money said that inquiries had been made for gold by several customers, but no prices had been quoted. They declared, however, that they were willing to furnish gold to a moderate amount at one-half of one per cent.

A Place for Congressman Cummings.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—Mayor Gilroy made twenty-one appointments to office yesterday. Seventeen of them were school commissioners and school inspectors. Besides these the mayor appointed three subway commissioners and a police justice. Amos J. Cummings, Jacob Hess and Henry S. Kearney were appointed subway commissioners for a term of three years. The salary of that office is $5,000 a year. Hess is a member of the present board. Cummings and Kearney were appointed to succeed Theodore Moss and Walton Storm. Mr. Cummings, who is a member of the Fifty-third congress, was defeated for re-election.

Feeding the Hungry Strikers.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A large crowd of hungry cloak makers, their wives and children, crowded the strikers' relief headquarters to receive provisions which were distributed among those possessing tickets showing their eligibility to receive the food. The place was densely packed and the crowd clamorous and violent. The men shouted and the women screamed, but order was finally restored and the work of distribution went on quietly. The manufacturers are much perturbed over the fact that some of their number are acceding to the demands of the strikers.

Deadly Duel in a Mine.

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Nov 22.—Samuel Franklin was killed by William Taylor in a duel at Scott Shaft yesterday. The men had quarreled over a trivial matter and decided to fight it out with revolvers. The men met and started to shoot. The first bullet from Taylor's pistol struck the right hand of Franklin, completely disabling that member. Taylor then fired four more shots, killing his opponent. He then escaped, with the police in pursuit.

An Original Massachusetts Republican.

NORTH ADAMS, Mass., Nov. 22.—Judge James T. Robinson died here yesterday afternoon, after a lingering illness, at the age of 72 years. He was editor of the North Adams Transcript, and an able writer. He was also judge of probate, and enjoyed a splendid reputation as a jurist. He was one of the organizers of the Republican party in Massachusetts, and a delegate at-large to the convention which renominated Abraham Lincoln.

Surrendered by His Bondsman.

HOBOKEN, N. J., Nov. 22.—Jesse Hansee, the Hoboken pension agent, under several indictments in the United States courts for crookedness in pension cases, and already convicted and fined $500 on one of these indictments, was surrendered yesterday by his bondsman, J. D. V. Hatfield. Hansee's further trials have been postponed until January. He spends his time in jail crying, and his friends say his health is breaking down.

MR. GOFF INTERVIEWED.

The New York Lawyer Talks of Municipal Misrule.

POWER OF GOTHAM'S POLICE FORCE.

Under the System Recently Uprooted in New York the Individual Comfort of Citizens Was Far Worse Than Under St. Petersburg's Most Violent Police Regulations.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 22.—Mr. John W. Goff, the prosecuting attorney for the Lexow Investigating committee, who is stopping in Washington for a few days, has given The Evening Star an interesting interview of nearly three columns on the work of the committee.

"It was, as you may imagine," he said, "a tremendous task that confronted us when we started the investigation. There were two distinct elements that prevented, at the beginning, a fair start and handicapped us in our efforts to get reliable testimony. These were the fear and apathy of the citizens.

"I speak within the bounds of my knowledge when I say that there was not a business man in New York city who had not felt the power of police blackmail. There were perhaps a very few instances where honorable men had refused to give their tithes of illegal tax to the police, but almost without exception these men were forced out of business.

"One peculiar feature of the blackmail was that it spared no one class, however obscure their calling. I have particularly in mind the sailmakers, who are among the most upright and sturdily honest people of New York. They are mostly retired sea captains, commanders of the old clipper ships, who have been forced out of business by the introduction of steam or their sons. Not one of these honest men dared to open his mouth and complain.

"Our duty was to arouse the conscience of the people of New York, which had long been smothered—almost killed. The common people, the voters, the people who most felt the oppresion of the police, would need to be aroused by different methods. The spectacle of a little boy sitting all night on a doorstep of a police station crying bitterly for his father, who had been unjustly arrested and brutally beaten by the police, meant more to these people than the demonstration that the captain had paid large money for his promotion or that the commissioner, perhaps, had been bribed. The common folks would not notice such matters, but they would notice the tyranny of the police over the apple woman, over the peanut roaster, the bootblack, the newsboy, the keeper of a small soda water stand, the owners of little restaurants—a great class of honest citizens striving, struggling for a living.

"You may be surprised when I say that New York, under the rule of the police department, as it was controlled by Tammany Hall, was far worse, as regards the individual comfort of citizens, than St. Petersburg under its most violent police regulation. This was accidentally illustrated by a witness who took the stand one day. He was a Pole, who had been sent to Siberia as a result of the Polish insurrection. He had escaped and reached this country, and about a year after his arrival he was unjustly arrested and cruelly beaten. When he was asked how the police of New York compared with those of St. Petersburg he answered that Russian police are gentle and humane compared with those of our city.

"As an illustration of the tremendous power wielded by this organization I will refer to the difficulty we had in obtaining witnesses to go upon the stand and swear to facts that they had brought to us in private. At first this applied to all classes, both reputable and disreputable. When appealed to they would claim that if they should testify the police would hound them out of the city. When asked if they could not go elsewhere and establish themselves in business they would reply that the persecution of the police of New York would follow them to every city in the country, and we gradually revealed the astounding fact that the police of New York dominated not only that city, but every large community in the country.

"The lower classes of citizens were made to believe that the blackmail was lawful and regular. They came to consider the captain of their precinct as the source of all municipal authority. In effect, he was such to them. This was illustrated by the introduction of the word 'pantata' into our language.

"You ask me if I think this power is now crushed. I do most emphatically. I think that, the public conscience having once been aroused, the machinery of this nauseous system exposed, will be a perpetual bar against the development of such an organization in the future. I consider the great danger to our form of governments in the possibility of municipal misrule. The tendency is too strongly toward the growth of the urban community at the expense of the rural. This feeds the machine that, if not watched and checked, will grow to such corrupting influence as that which we have just destroyed in New York. Centralization, I believe, as this investigation has proved, is the danger of the day. I believe that the example of New York will serve to check this tendency toward corruption and police domination.

"I cannot answer the question as to where the blackmail money went or in what proportions it was distributed, for that is a personal matter, which would force me to mention names. Nor can I tell you just what lines the committee will take upon the resumption of its work a week from next Monday. We will try to finish the work by the first of January. Then I will be obliged to leave the committee to assume the duties of my office."

The only way to cure catarrh is to purify the blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla purifies the blood and tones up the whole system.

Treatment of Eczema and Salt Rheum

These two complaints are so tenacious that the readers of the Argus and Mercury should know of the success obtained by using Dr. David Kennedy's Favorite Remedy. Where all other treatments failed, it has made a complete cure.

Perhaps no more horrible case of Salt Rheum was ever reported than that of Wilbur L Hale, quartermaster, Pratt Post, G A. R, Rondout, N. Y. Several physicians utterly failed to render him any relief; finally one of the physicians suggested that Dr. Kennedy's Favorite Remedy be tried and steady improvement followed its use, and a permanent cure resulted.

It is used with similar success in cases of scrofula, nervousness, kidney and liver complaints, and in all diseases brought about by bad blood and shattered nerves.

MAKING THEM HAPPY

JUMPIN JOE OF CHEROKEE SCORES A GREAT SUCCESS.

He Opens Up In the Town of Jeffersonville, and With the Mayor on His Side He Introduces His Panoramy to a Wildly Enthusiastic Audience.

On Wednesday arternoon last I pitched my tent and hung out my signs in the young and stragglin town of Jeffersonville. I had skeercely got my grand aggregashun under kiver when the mayor appeared and sez:

"HAS YER PANORAMY GOT ITS CLOTHES ON?"

"It ar' my offishul dooty to inquar if this ar' a moral show?"

"She be," sez I. "While I am nuthin but a humble worm of the dust, nuthin could indooce me to travel about with an exhibishun calkerlated to corrupt the morals of the populashun of Cherokee."

"Has yer panoramy got its clothes on?"

"She has. Nuthin will be found about that panoramy to injoore anybody's feelin's."

"What is yer pertickler objick in showin this show?" sez he as he picks up a stick and scratches the back of my eddecated hog in a fatherly way.

"Fustly, to amoose, instruct and make the world better, and, secondly, to call attenshun to my Cherokee sassyparilly and Magic cement, two fam'ly remedies which should be found in every household."

"Do ye deliver a lectur' in conjunckshun with that panoramy?"

"I do. That lectur' alone is wuth walkin ten miles to h'ar."

"It ar' my offishul dooty to inquar if thar ar' any jokes in that lectur'? We ar' a strugglin people, and richness is not fur us, but we hev a reputashun to sustain."

I solemnly assoored him that thar was not a joke in it from beginnin to end, and to convince him of the fact I repeated most of the lectur'. When he was satisfied of the integrity of my cause, his eyes filled with tears, and he pressed my hand and sez:

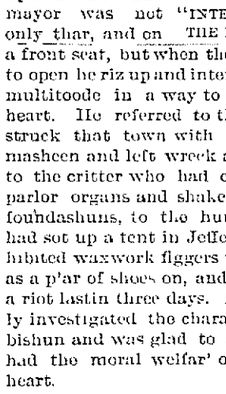
"Feller critter, 'tis well! Go right ahead and show yer varchewous exhibishun, and I'll do all I kin on the outside to make the same a bountyful success."

As usual, thar was no charge fur admishun, which is one of the strongest p'ints of my exhibishun. The news circulated around that nuthin was to be exhibited to offend the most innocent babe, and as a consekense the aujeence was an overflowin one and in the best of speerits. The mayor was not only thar, and on a front seat, but when the show was ready to open he riz up and interdooced me to the multitoode in a way to tech the human heart. He referred to the kuss who had struck that town with a patent washin masheen and left wreck and ruin behind, to the critter who had cum thar to sell parlor organs and shaken society to its foundashuns, to the human hyena who had sot up a tent in Jeffersonville and exhibited waxwork figgers without so much as a p'ar of shoes on, and tharby produced a riot lastin three days. He had offishually investigated the character of my exhibishun and was glad to announce that I had the moral welfar' of the public at heart.

"INTERDOOCED ME TO THE MULTITOODE."

I then exhibited the fust pictur' of my panoramy, which was a scene on the Rhine. I expected an outburst of enthoosiasm, but was skeercely prepared fur the ovashun which follered. Sum of the aujeence labored under the idea that it had sunthin to do with Christopher Columbus diskiverin the Cherokee strip, and sum others gin three cheers fur Gineral Jackson lickin the British at New Orleans. Seein that public enthoosiasm was aroused and with me, I said nuthin to dampen it. The second pictur' was a view of some ruins in the Holy Land. I was about to explain that sich was the case, and that ruins was now quoted in the market at 20 per cent above last y'ar's prices, when the aujeence began to cheer. They took the pictur' fur the ruins of Chicago arter the great fire, and the mayor riz up and blowed his nose and wiped his eyes and said he lost a brother in that calamity and could recognize the very rum under which his mangled remains war found reposin after things had cooled off. Sum of the populace cheered, and sum wept, and I didn't hev the heart to tell 'em that the stait of Illinoy was fur, fur from the Holy Land.

The third pictur' represented the "Landin of the Pilgrims," and an affectin incident foliered its interdooshun. A gray haired ole critter on a back sent recognized his brother among the Pilgrims and got up and hooted fur joy and then broke down and wept. He had bin worryin over that brother fur y'ars and y'ars, thinkin he was dead or bettin his money on hoss races, and to find him wadin ashore among a lot of honorable and high minded people was sich an agreeable surprise that he begged the aujeence to excuse his emoshuns. The mayor likewise riz up to remark that trooth was stranger than a lie, and that this was still another evidence of my varchewous and honorable intenshuns to'ards the people of Cherokee.

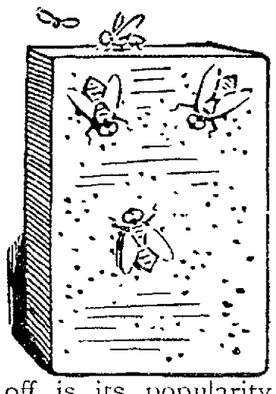


RECOGNIZED HIS BROTHER.

When I had exhausted the panoramy, which the populace insisted on beholdin twice over, I called attenshun to my fam'ly remedies and disposed of 15 bottles of sassyparilly and 10 of Magic cement. The enthooslasm was not exactly as bountyful as I could hev wished fur, but the mayor's explanashun, that a feller had cum along the week afore with a guessin hog and strapped the town of all but $17 was perfeckly satisfactory. I took jest as much pains to exhibit my eddecated hog, five legged wolf, jumpin frog and exhibishun grasshopper as if I had made sales amount in to $50. When the exhibishun was about to close, I stepped for'd with my usual blandness and announced my readiness to jine all yearnin souls in the blissful bonds of matrimony free of charge. The enthoosiasm was spontaneous. It broke out into yells and hoots and cheers, which put out seven of the kerosene lamps and skeered my five legged wolf till he laid down and howled. When the patriotism had sumwhat subsided, the mayor riz up with tears in his eyes and made another speech in my favor—a speech in which he took sand and a rag and polished up my character till it shone like a lantern in a dark garret. I don't know how many couples stepped forth to be jined, but I should say at least 40. I mar'd 'em all to once in a hullsale way and added my fatherly blessin, and when the aujeence had departed and the silence of night had fell upon me and my grand aggregashun I seemed to h'ar a still, small voice whisper in in my ears; said the bright woman who had asked for Pearline, to the grocer who wanted to sell her some imitation of it, "whether you do sell more of these other things or not, there must be something in Pearline which makes the flies avoid it. I notice that all the Pearline packages are clean and fresh. All the others are fly-specked!"

"Durn a kuss who won't make a feller critter happy when it don't cost nuthin to do it!"

AUSTIN KEENE.



"Well,"

This is a true story. Everything is true that we print about Pearline. The thing in Pearline that keeps flies off is its popularity. It doesn't stay on the shelves long enough to become soiled. When women want washing made easy, without any risk of harm, they must have Pearline.

Send it Back Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers will tell you "this is as good as" or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—Pearline is never peddled, and if your grocer sends you something in place of Pearline, be honest—send it back. 427 JAMES PYLE, New York.

"Have you a $20 greenback you wouldn't mind exchanging for small bills?" asked the gentlemanly stranger. "I want to send $20 in a letter, and it's more convenient to send it in one bill. Besides it's safer."

"I reckon I can accommodate you, young man," replied Uncle Zeb Haycraft, drawing a roll of bills from his pocket and proceeding to extract a twenty from it. "Here it is."

"Thank you. Here is the change. Count it, please, and see if it's correct."

Uncle Zeb counted it.

"It's a dollar short," he said.

"Let me see," exclaimed the other, taking the bills out of his hand and running them over rapidly.

"Why, so it is. I'll put in another dollar."

He took a $1 bill out of his vest pocket, added it to the roll and handed the money back.

A short time afterward Uncle Zeb ascertained, by a careful recount, that his change was exactly $5 short, but it was too late. The gentlemanly stranger had left the train.

"Are you going any farther than Chicago?" inquired the agent of the omnibus line an hour or two later, touching Uncle Zeb on the shoulder and rousing him from an uneasy slumber.

"What do you want?" demanded Uncle Zeb, eying him suspiciously.

"Are you going any farther than Chicago?"

"I don't reckon it's any of your business!"

"Let me see your ticket."

"Say, young feller," said Uncle Zeb sternly, "I've been swindled once this morning, and that's enough. Now, you go on and mind your business, or I'll throw you off'n the train!"

"All right, cap," replied the agent, passing on down the aisle.

When Uncle Zeb had reached the city and got his trunk and valise, with much difficulty out of the hands of the baggageman at the station, he paid a grasping citizen with a springless wagon $1.50 to haul himself and his baggage to a railway station that proved to be only four or five blocks away. He missed the train for the east, was compelled to wait eight hours for the next one, and it is the opinion of unbiased persons who saw him clamber aboard the cars at last that he is swearing yet.—Chicago Tribune.

A Compliment.

Two young men stood in the office of the Grand hotel one afternoon chatting pleasantly together. They were of that class who can enjoy the bright afternoons in idle happiness, for they have nothing else to do.

Presently one of them pulled a package of cigarettes from his pocket, and quickly striking a match on the sole of his shoe lit his treasure without deigning to pass the box to his companion.

"Well, there's politeness for you," said the young man thus slighted.

"Certainly it is," the other remarked. "I never offer a man a cigarette, for I believe it is the height of discourtesy. To pass your cigarette is to intimate that your friend is a victim of the habit, and to a sensitive man this is an insult. Never be offended if a gentleman neglects to offer you a cigarette when he lights one in your presence. He is really paying you a delicate compliment."—Cincinnati Tribune.

Learning to Cook.

"No, ma'am," said the grocer, making a great clattering among his tins. "I have coffeepots and teapots, but there isn't such a thing as a jack pot in the store."

"I'm so sorry," wailed the young wife. "You see, we haven't been married long, and my husband's mother has always cooked for him, and when I heard him talking in his sleep about a jack pot I thought I'd get one, for he mentions it so often he must be used to it. Could you tell me what they cook in it?"

"Greens, ma'am," said the grocer, and he sent her to the tin store in the next block.—Detroit Free Press.

His Platform.

"We don't," shouted the impassioned orator, "we don't want nothing else but the English language spoke in this country, and don't you forget it."

And the hearers promised themselves to remember what he had spoken.—Indianapolis Journal.

THE COUNTY'S LAWMAKERS

ANNUAL SESSION OF THE BOARD OF SUPERVISORS.

GOSHEN, Nov 21.—Jessie L Dubois, $800, and Jacob Schultz, $1 500, were added to Chester's assessment roll.

Charles L. Brown, from the First District, reported the expenditure of $14 85 in the distribution of fish. Mr Roberson, from the Second District, had expended nothing.

Messrs. Wilson and Roberson reported that 6 000 copies of the proceedings of last year's Board had been printed at a cost of $959 88.

The Building Committees of 1893 reported the expenditure of $2 026.04 The largest item was $1 000 for improvements at Newburgh. The balance was spent for insurance and necessary repairs.

Ex-Supervisor Wallace, the "supply committee" for the village of Goshen, reported that he had expended, or rather paid out $5 201.10 for the year of 1893. In round figures this amount is made up about as follows: Coal, about $1,100; janitor's salary, $900; light, about $600; books for the Surrogate's office and County Clerk's office, $600: copying lis pendens, $300, and the balance in supplies for the Surrogate's office, County Clerk's office and jail. This item includes water rents, paper, printing and other necessaries of the offices. The report was referred to the proper committee.

Messrs. Geo. W. Sayer and John A. Patterson, the committee appointed, last year, to visit St. Mary's Home at Port Jervis, reported that they visited the Home, July 21st, without notice of their coming. There were ninety-one children in the home, fifty-two of them county charges. The children were neatly clad, were happy and contented and seemed well cared for. The sanitary condition of the home seemed perfect. A second visit to the Home, which was to have been made on Oct. 31st, was ommitted because of smallpox in the Home.

Drafts were ordered as follows: A. V. D. Wallace, $30; Gabriel Tuthill, $15; J. C. Adams, $30.

Resolutions were adopted for the appointment of a committee of three to act with the District Attorney in offering rewards for the detection of criminals, and for appointment of committees of two to visit Orange Farm, Children's Home and St. Mary's Home. The committees will be named later.

An appropriation of $40 for the distribution of fish was made.

At the suggestion of Mr. Adams, Mr Bradley, of Wawayanda, made a supplementary statement to that made by Mr. Adams, Monday, in regard to Orange county's assessment made by the State Assessors. Mr. Bradley has thoroughly posted himself on this matter, and has some interesting figures to submit to the Board. This matter will be brought up later, and I shall report it fully when action and debate is made thereon.

Mr. Durland, of Warwick, offered a resolution to the effect that $1,009 07 be assessed and collected from the taxable property of the town of Warwick, that being the amount reported by the commissioners appointed to lay out a highway in that town, as being the sum the town of Warwick should pay.

A TYPHOID FEVER EPIDEMIC.

A Pestilence Raging in an Ulster County Village—Invited by Unsanitary Conditions.

A fearful epidemic of typhoid fever has broken out in that part of the village of Hickory Bush, near Whiteport Station, on the Wallkill Valley Railroad which is occupied by Huns and Poles. Not more than 200 people live in the infected district, yet there are over sixty cases of fever and five deaths have occurred.

The houses in which the disease has broken out belong to the Newark and Rosendale Cement Company and are in a most unsanitary condition, and their surroundings are filthy beyond description. Rev. Father McGill reported the condition of affairs to the Board of Health of the town of Rosendale, and that body is now trying to remedy conditions to which it shut its eyes and which invited the pestilence now raging.

"Soon They'll Marry."

Mr. and Mrs. Charles H. Dickerson, of Millsburg, in the town of Wawayanda, have issued invitations for the marriage of their daughter, Glorlana, to Frank C. Hull, of the town of Wallkill, Wednesday, Nov. 28th, at 12 o'clock, noon.

Taken to Clayton for Burial.

The body of the late J. W. Webb, who died, Tuesday, at his home on Hanford street, was taken to Clayton, N. J., yesterday, for interment. A committee from Middletown Lodge I. O. O. F., accompanied the family.

A Baby's Life Saved.

WALTON, N. Y., April 14, 1894.—When my baby was six months old she was taken very badly with diarrhœa. A doctor came every day for a week. Baby got worse, until she could notice nothing at all. I got so worried I called on our druggists and he recommended Dr. Hand's Diarrhœa Mixture. I got it and just one-half a bottle cured my baby and saved her life.

UP THE MIDLAND.

A Thriving Town—An After Election Thought—Sixty-one Years in a Poor House—A Well Lighted House—No More Farm Improvements—On Trial for Manslaughter—Water Comes High—A Cold November—Farmers' Mutual Insurance Companies.

Correspondence ARGUS and MERCURY.

—Walton is fast becoming a great big bustling city and is growing faster than any other place on the line of the O. and W. north of Middletown. It is the only real up and down live town in Delaware county. Prohibition in Walton is a paradox, for while it is no license there are more intoxicants sold and drank there than in any other town in the county. Voting a Republican ticket would seem to cover a multitude of sins in Republican ridden Walton as far as observing the excise laws is concerned.

—If Mr. Cleveland had been running for office the cyclone would have struck him harder than it did Mr. Hill. When the Republicans get control I want to see them turn every Democrat out as soon as possible. The voters of either party have no use for officials who will keep the enemy in power and the present administration has done too much of that for its own good and that of the party. Had Mr. Cleveland enforced the motto "to the victor belong the spoils" things might have been different from what they are to-day.

—Peter Dann, an inmate of the Delaware county poor house, died Nov. 8th. The deceased was a German and had lived in the poor house sixty-one years. Thousands of the tax payers of that county live on poorer fare and in more shabby quarters than do the county poor. The poor farm is one of the best in Delaware county and the cost of keeping the poor is a mere nothing so long as they are able to work on the farm.

—For a long time Norwich has been kicking over its electric lights. The lighting company recently put in a new plant, and that town is, today, as well if not better lighted than any town of its size I was ever in. The width and straightness of its streets have a great deal to do with the proper distribution of light from its street lamps. Its founders never intended that it should have a large growth, consequently they made its streets straight. Middletown was intended for a large city, and as a result its founders had to follow the cow paths after the fashion of Boston or lower New York. I know that Middletown is large and its streets crooked, because I got lost in it once.

—It is a fact plain to be seen that farmers are not improving their farms as they formerly did, when wages for help were lower than now. This is a matter that will soon show itself in lessened production and consequent higher prices.

—M. R. Dodge, of Rockland, widely known as "Gum" Dodge, is very much improved in health, and is now thought to be out of danger.

—The Cowan Water Company has another law suit on its hands in Sullivan county, over the Livingston Manor supply, as P. R. Woolsey wants damages for taking the water away from his saw mill, and sash and blind factory. The heavy damages awarded in the case of Sipple against the Roscoe Water Co., will have a tendency to make water come high up this way for some time to come.

—The A. S. Landfield & Son Stone Co., of Middletown, does an extensive business along the O. and W. and pays for all it buys. These men were born and raised here, and are consequently in touch with all the quarrymen.

ON TRIAL FOR MANSLAUGHTER.

—The Afton shooting case is now being tried at Norwich. The person on trial for manslaughter is a woman, Mrs. Florence A. Parker. The hoodlums turned out to give her a skimelton or horning on the occasion of her marriage. She requested them to stop, and when they would not and stoned the house, asserted her rights with a revolver, killing one of them. The woman ought and no doubt will be acquitted. The days of skimeltons have gone by, and the person or persons who attempt to annoy another on their own premises must take their chances. Forbearance often ceases to be a virtue. It's a wonder she hadn't shot more of them when she was about it.

A COLD NOVEMBER.

—Garden truck suffered severely with the frost of the past two weeks and the cold wave of Monday night as the majority of people were caught napping. Sleighing on "'lection" day is one of the things we have heard about more than most of us ever saw, but let it stand recorded as a fact that in a few instances sleighs were actually in use on election day, Nov. 6th, 1894. And snow drifts four feet deep can be found two weeks after that date, making it so far, the coldest November I ever saw. Older men have the floor.

FARMERS' MUTUAL INSURANCE COMPANIES.

—Whether or not the Mutual Agricultural Insurance Companies that have started up all over the United States, since the old companies refused to take risks on farm property, will be a saving to the farmers or not will soon be solved. The Delaware County Company has met with heavy losses lately, and should they continue on for the next two months as they have for the past two, the cost to the insurers will be as high, if not higher, than in the stock companies. So far these mutual companies have kept the cost down far below the rates charged by the stock companies, but how long they may be able to do this is an unsolved problem. All the insurance agents that I have talked with in regard to this matter predict failure for these mutual concerns shortly after the rag tag and bob tail have been taken in. The officers of the mutual companies should see to it that no shaky risks are taken, and if they have any such on their books they should expurgate them at once. If the farmers are to make a success of insuring their own property, they must only expect to do it now by critical selection of risks. Two years more will tell the tale. "Forewarned is forearmed," is an old saying, and it is as applicable to the present case as when first coined.

RUSTICUS.

Russia's Grain Crop Decrease.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—The grain crop of Russia, as estimated by the agricultural ministry, according to a St. Petersburg cable, are as follows: Wheat, 272,000,000 bushels, against 326,000,000 last year; rye, 795,000,000, against 752,000,000; barley, 176,000,000, against 224 000,000; oats, 664,000,000, against 672,000,000; maize, less than half of last year's crop.

Murder in the First Degree.

MEADEVILLE, Pa., Nov. 22.—The jury in the case of Fred McDonnel, on trial for the murder of John McAndrew, brought in a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree. The defense has given notice of application for a new trial. The county has had but two executions in its history, and both of these took place over seventy-five years ago.

Farmer Robbed by Highwaymen.

WILMINGTON, Del., Nov. 22.—W. J. Husbands a Delaware county farmer, living at Johnson's Corner, was robbed by highwaymen late at night He was approaching his home when the men stepped from behind trees, threw blankets over his head, dragged him into a dense thicket, knocked him senseless and took $185 from his pockets

The Czar to be Married on Monday.

ST. PETERSBURG, Nov 22.—It is stated that Czar Alexander left a document to be opened nine days after his death When the document was opened it was found to contain an entreaty to marry Princess Alix directly after the funeral. Hence the wedding has been fixed for Monday

Death of a German Grand Duke.

BERLIN Nov 22.—Carl August, hereditary grand duke of Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, died at Cape St. Martin, aged 50 years The cause of the grand duke's death was inflammation of the lungs, from which he had been suffering for several days.

Franch Buried Without Ceremony.

BARCELONA, Spain, Nov. 22.—The body of Franch, the executed anarchist, was interred last evening without a priest being present, and without any religious ceremony During the day immense crowds of people defiled before the scaffold and took a last look at the body of the anarchist with the deadly collar of the garrotte encircling his neck.

A Juvenile Horse Thief.

LANCASTER, Pa., Nov. 22.—Harry Immel, aged 15 years, was arrested last night on the charge of horse stealing. He deliberately drove off with a team belonging to a farmer who was attending market, and was endeavoring to sell it when captured by the police The boy seems to think he has performed a great feat.

To Reduce Shirtmakers' Wages.

NEW YORK, Nov. 22.—A general lockout of shirtmakers is imminent The difficulty arises from an intention expressed by contractors to reduce wages 10 per cent., and to lockout their employes if the reduction is not accepted. The shirtmakers have been given until Saturday to decide as to the proposed cut.

J. K. Emmett Again Married.

DAVENPORT, Ia., Nov 22.—J. K. Emmett ("Our Fritz") arrived in town yesterday with his company. Mr. Emmett at once proceeded to the court house for a marriage license. A few minutes later the actor and Miss May Haggins Stevens, a member of the company, were married.

Father and Two Sons Drowned.

ST HILAIRE, N. B., Nov. 22.—Word has reached here that while Isador Doigle, his two sons and Paul Oullette were crossing the River St. John in a small canoe the boat capsized, and Doigle and his two sons were drowned Oullette was rescued.

A VICTORY FOR PASKOLA

It Receives the Official Endorsement of Eminent Experts and a Jury of Representative Citizens.

The suit brought by Ohio's Food Commissioner against a Cincinnati druggist for selling Paskola on the ground that it was nothing but glucose, resulted in a great victory for Paskola and a verdict against the State.

During the course of the trial, Prof. Shaller of the University of Cincinnati, testified that Paskola was not glucose, and even if it was, it would be harmless. He also bore witness to its activity as a digestive agent.

Prof. Wm. Dickore of the Miami College, testified to the same facts. So did Prof. Schmidt, the chemist of the Board of Health, Prof. Wm. Hoffman and others.

A practical test was made in court, showing the digestive action of Paskola on eggs and meats of various kinds, whereas glucose under precisely the same conditions produced no effect whatever.

This test but confirmed the expert's statements and proved Paskola to be of great value in indigestion and wasting diseases.

This verdict disposes of the malicious attack that has been made against Paskola by interested rivals, and suits have now been brought against the proprietors of a well-known emulsion of cod liver oil for having given wide circulation to a false formula and other misrepresentations regarding it.

The animus of this attack will be the better understood when it is stated that Paskola is being largely used in the place of cod liver oil.

RESCUED FROM A WATERY GRAVE.

A Young Woman Saves a Man from Drowning.

From Our Haven Correspondent.

Filmore Budd, of Phillipsport, while riding on a canal boat, Tuesday, undertook to steer it and fell in the canal, as the boat was passing this place. The accident happened opposite the home of Miss Annie Murphy, and had it not been for her promptness and courage he would have been drowned, for the captain of the boat was in the cabin and for a time knew nothing of the accident. Miss Murphy helped get a rowboat ready, pulled it to where Budd was struggling in the water and helped drag him out on the towpath. He was insensible, and the boatmen gave him up as dead and went on to Wurtsboro and notified the coroner Miss Murphy persisted in her efforts to resuscitate the man, and with the assistance of some boatmen who had arrived succeeded in bringing him to. Budd was in a critical condition, Tuesday afternoon, but is expected to recover.

A. E. NICKINSON, BUSINESS MANAGER

THURSDAY, NOV. 22 1894.

The political upheaval was felt by the Prohibitionists even more severely than by the Democrats. In every county in this State there was a marked decrease in the Prohibition vote, and the percentage of loss is more than twice that of the Democrats.

The Committee of Seventy, which, since election, has assumed to run reform in New York city, is very much annoyed at the action of the Good Government Club in preferring charges against District Attorney Fellows. The committee had arranged to have a deputy attorney general assist Col. Fellows in the trial of election cases, and in an inquiry into departmental irregularities and say that the bumptiousness of the amateur reformers of the Goody-Good Clubs can have no other effect than to delay and embarrass the work of reform.

Robert P. Murphy, Democratic candidate for Member of Assembly in Niagara county, who wasn't elected, in his sworn statement of election expenses, which amount to $695 acknowledges that $285 was spent for drinks and cigars. Nearly every candidate spent more or less money in hotels or saloons, but so far as heard from Mr. Murphy is the only candidate who reports his bar bills. Mr. Murphy ought to have a memorial. Nothing like him has been seen since the year "Clint" Wisner, of Warwick, ran for Member of Assembly in this district and reported the expenditure of several hundred dollars in "getting acquainted with the boys."

It is to be regretted that Attorney General Hancock could not find some law that would have warranted Gov. Flower or the prison authorities in authorizing the experiment of resuscitation which Dr. Gibbon, of Syracuse, is anxious to try on murderer Wilson after his electrocution. The positive and oft-repeated assertion that the electrical current used in the execution of murderers does not kill but merely suspends the vital functions, and that life can be restored by artificial respiration has raised a question in the public mind as to whether condemned murderers really die in the electrical chair or under the knives of the surgeons performing the post mortem. It would be well to have this question settled, and since the soon to be executed murderer is willing that his body should be experimented with, no reasonable excuse can be given for not handing it over to the experimenters.

Republican leaders are at a loss to know what to do with their big victory. Extreme protectionists and the advocates of special interests insist that ruin is involved in the Democratic tariff policy, and that the Republican party is pledged to put forth every effort to restore McKinley duties. More conservative men say that while the result of the election is a vindication of the theory of protection, the popular verdict must be accepted merely as a declaration that the people want no more tariff legislation. Nothing can be accomplished in the way of tariff changes until after the election of 1896, and if business thrives under the Democratic tariff the conservative element in the party will probably have its way, but if a Republican President is elected two years hence, and if through agitation of the currency question or any other cause business conditions are unsettled, the extreme protectionists will put the blame on the Democratic tariff and will probably carry their point and be able to undo all that has been accomplished in the way of tariff reform.

SUICIDE NEAR UNIONVILLE.

A Well Known Farmer Hangs Himself in His Barn While Temporarily Insane.

Information has reached us from various sources, to-day, among them being our correspondents at Unionville, of the suicide, last night, of Mr. Geo. T. Elston, who resided near Wolf Pit, in Wantage Township, Sussex county, N. J.

There is little doubt that the act was committed while Mr. Elston was temporarily insane. He has complained of his head for several weeks, and has been possessed of a fear that he was about to suffer a stroke of paralysis, as his mother had died of that disease.

Mr. Elston was one of the leading farmers of Wantage and was well to do. He was elected tax collector last spring, and has given much attention to his official duties, but at the same time neglected other matters.

Mr. Elston had Coe Goble and son, carpenters, engaged in building a hennery and yesterday drove to Deckertown for a load of lumber for their use. He afterwards did his evening work.

About 9 o'clock the carpenters retired and the family soon afterwards. A noise in the barn attracted the attention of one of the boys, who informed his father, and the latter dressed and went out.

A half hour passed, and as he did not return, his son, Frank, was sent to look for him. The lad called to his father, but got no answer, and then Mrs. Elston went with him and after searching the stables they opened the barn door and were horrified to find Mr. Elston hanging from the trip rope of the hay fork, about four feet from the floor.

Mrs. Elston's screams aroused the carpenters, who hurried to the barn and cut the body down, but life was extinct.

Justice C. E. Stickney is holding an inquest, to-day.

Deceased is survived by his wife and two sons, Frank and Burt, aged fifteen and twelve years, respectively.

Mrs. Elston has the sympathy of all in the community in her great trouble.

A GOLDEN WEDDING.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding's Half a Century of Married Life.

Fifty years ago, Mr. Elisha R Harding and Miss Sophia M. King were married on the Seybolt place, near Otisville, the ceremony being performed by the late Elder Gilbert Beebe.

This evening the event will be celebrated, but owing to the recent death of Mrs. Harding's mother it will only be a family affair.

Mr. and Mrs. Harding have six children living, all of whom will be with them on this occasion. They are Emma, at home; Mrs. C. C. Lutes, Mrs. David McBurney and Mrs. Warren Adams, of this city, and Messrs. Ashbell C., of Council Bluffs, Iowa, and Charles, of Norfolk, Neb.

Mr. Harding has two sisters, Mrs Thomas A. Mills, of this city, and Mrs Thomas King, of Council Bluffs, and one brother, George N. Harding, of Brooklyn, and Mrs. Harding has one brother, Mr. Thomas King, none of whom will be able to be present, except possibly Mr. Harding, of Brooklyn.

We are pleased to be able to state that Mr. and Mrs. Harding are enjoying good health and bid fair to enjoy many more years of married life, which is the earnest wish of the Argus as well as their many other friends.

Neck Lanced Without Relief

Hood's Sarsaparilla Purifies the Blood and Conquers.

"C. I. Hood & Co., Lowell, Mass.:
"Gentlemen: I had large scrofulous bunches on my neck for seven years. I treated with different physicians and tried many remedies but Did Not Get Any Help for them. I went to Rome, N. Y., and had them opened, but this gave me only temporary relief. My physician then urged me to take Hood's Sarsaparilla, and before I had used one bottle the bunches began to grow better. Today I Am O. K., and the trouble has not returned since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, only the scars being left.

Children's Clothing Again!

IS it possible that you have already forgotten what we said about children's clothing? If so, we repeat for your especial benefit. 'Twas this: We are selling our entire stock of Children's Clothing without profit. This method we have adopted because we believe that can we once serve you we shall always serve you, feeling assured we can supply you with the best goods at the lowest price attainable. We have marked the prices on the children's goods in plain figures, so you can see for yourself.

To the contrary, as has been insinuated, we are not working off old stock because we sell without profit. The stock is all new, and the same that we would have sold you at a profit had we not adopted this method.

Again:—Is it probable that we make up the profit on the other lines of stock with other clothiers in town, when we sell, as we do, below their rates? How think you?

MRS. ROYCE FOUND GUILTY

THE SENTENCE IS EXPULSION FROM ST. PAUL'S CHURCH.

It Takes the Jury Three Hours to Agree Upon the Verdict Every One Expected—Scenes and Incidents of the Closing Hours of the Trial—Mr. Clarke's Two Vain Attempts to Shut Off the "Argus's" Sources of Information—An Appeal Taken—Dr. Darwood's Trial—Mrs. Royce Not Surprised at the Result.

The trial of Mrs. E C. Royce, which has been in progress at St. Paul's Church for the past two days, ended at 2 o'clock, this morning. The jury found the defendant guilty of the charges of circulating slanderous stories concerning Dr. Darwood and members of the congregation and Rev. Mr. Clarke, the presiding judge, sentenced her to expulsion from the church.

MR CLARKE'S BAD QUARTERS OF AN HOUR

Mr. Clarke had two bad quarters of an hour, yesterday, because of the wonderful acoustic properties of the bricks in the walls of St Paul's. Its queer about those bricks; they carry news both ways and just before the court adjourned for supper, the judge, jury and spectators came to know that the ARGUS had published the proceedings of the court in detail and that the other papers had accounts of the trial, which were approximately correct.

Mr. Clarke said he wanted to call the attention of all to the fact that there was a leak somewhere for despite all precautions to keep the proceedings of the court secret, the ARGUS had had a full report of Tuesday's proceedings and he had just learned that to-day's proceedings had also been printed in full. Said Mr. Clarke, who pounded the desk to emphasize his words: "This thing has got to stop. If I can find out who is giving information as to these proceedings, charges will be brought and the guilty parties compelled to stand trial. I don't know who is doing this thing. I was never so baffled in my life. But its got to stop."

THIS SISTER HADN'T LEAKED.

While he was talking some of the sisters present turned to one of the witnesses in the case and accused her of "giving the snap away." As soon as Mr. Clarke had finished the accused sister rose in her seat and said she had been falsely accused of supplying the papers with information. She had said to her husband that it was terrible that Dr. Darwood had contradicted her testimony. She supposed she had a right to say that, for it was the truth. She had talked with none of the newspaper men.

Mr. Clarke said he was satisfied the sister had been falsely accused. There was no reason to suspect her, but all must put a bridle on their tongues.

SILENCE AGAIN ENJOINED

During the evening session Mr. Clarke, who seems to have improved his mind during the intermission by perusal of the columns of the ARGUS, again referred to the published report of the proceedings of the trial, which he said was so full and accurate that it could not have been obtained, except from inside the court. He didn't know who was to blame, but "this thing has got to stop."

In spite of all Mr. Clarke's injunctions and exhortations, there was no interruption of the ARGUS's means of communication and we are able to give our usual full and accurate account of the proceedings.

MRS. ROYCE'S CROSS-EXAMINATION

The cross-examination of Mrs. Royce occupied two hours. It was very searching. Judge Groo plied her with questions calculated to confuse and embarrass her, but he did not succeed in shaking her story in any essential.

While Mrs. Royce was testifying Mrs Darwood, who was very nervous and showed plainly the effects of the severe strain of the past few days, frequently interrupted the witness by exclaiming: "That's false! That's false!" The interruptions continued until Mrs. Royce's counsel insisted that the witness should be protected from such annoyance.

MISS DEVED ON THE STAND.

Miss Eula L. Deved was called as soon as Mrs. Royce's examination had been concluded. Her attorneys, Vanamee, Watts & Vail, in order that the suit for slander which they are about to bring for her against Dr. Darwood might not be prejudiced, refused to allow her to testify until it was stipulated by Mrs. Royce's counsel that she should only be questioned as to a conversation between Mrs. Darwood, Mrs. Royce and herself, at her home. This restriction and the objections of Judge Groo, sustained by Mr. Clarke, prevented Miss Deved from giving evidence of much importance, though her version of what Mrs. Darwood said at the interview in question startled many of her hearers.

James Moore testified that he had known Mrs. Royce for years, and had always found her truthful and not given to gossip or to meddling with other people's affairs.

A MUZZLED WITNESS.

Henry P. Powers was the next witness. He was allowed to give his name and residence and to state how long he had been connected with the church and the offices he had held in it, but was shut off on nearly everything else by Judge Groo's objections, all of which were sustained by Mr. Clarke. He was not allowed to tell of the meeting of the official board of the church in October, which passed a "vote of confidence" in Dr. Darwood, nor of the Sunday School Board meeting that expelled Miss Deved. He was allowed to say that his relations with Dr. Darwood had been pleasant until this scandal became public, but was not permitted to say what they were now.

WOMEN IN WHITE.

Mr. Powers was asked by Mr. Esmond if he remembered a conversation with Dr. Darwood, on West Main street, in the summer of 1893, regarding women in white Judge Groo promptly objected. Mr. Esmond argued for the admission of the question, saying that he proposed to show that the Doctor had said that women in white were lovely and angelic. He insisted that as this conversation took place about the time that Mrs. Royce had testified that the sight of her in white had caused the Doctor to exclaim, "Oh, you beauty! How charming you look in white. I want you, I must have you," it was directly connected with the case. He said that Dr. Darwood could deny having said this, as he had denied everything else, but the matter was relevant and should be admitted. Mr. Clarke didn't think it worth while to put Dr. Darwood to the trouble of another denial and the question was not allowed.

MRS. DARWOOD THE LAST WITNESS.

Judge Groo did not care to cross-examine Mr. Powers and the defense announced that the case was closed.

Mrs. Darwood was recalled by the prosecution and she denied Mrs. Royce's and Miss DeVed's version of the conversation between them, and the prosecution said it was through.

Mr. Clarke stormed and threatened because the ARGUS was publishing full reports of the secret trial and with his anathemas ringing in their ears, court, jury and spectators went to supper.

SUMMING UP THE CASE.

When court re-convened, Judge Groo began summing up for the prosecution. He spoke for an hour. Mr. McLaughlin summed up for the defense, speaking for an hour and a quarter. Judge Groo then made a final appeal for the prosecution and Mr. Clarke charged the jury. Undoubtedly Mr. Clarke meant to be fair and impartial, but he could not disabuse his mind of the fact that a brother minister (whom he is to defend next week) had a vital interest in the result of the trial and he did not tip the scales of justice to the defendant's side.

THE JURY OUT THREE HOURS.

The jury retired at 11 o'clock. They wrestled with the case for three hours before they did as every one expected they would do,—found Mrs. Royce guilty of the charges. Mrs. Royce had gone home without waiting for the verdict, so she did not hear Mr. Clarke's sentence of expulsion from the church.

THE CASE TO BE APPEALED.

As soon as sentence had been pronounced, Messrs. Esmond and McLaughlin, in behalf of Mrs. Royce, served notice of appeal. They hope to secure a new trial on the ground that Mr. Clarke's rulings were so biased and unjust that material evidence was excluded and that the whole truth was not brought out. If the decision of the quarterly conference sustains the judgment rendered yesterday, a further appeal will be taken to the New York Conference.

DR. DARWOOD'S TRIAL NEXT.

Dr. Darwood's trial on the charges preferred against him by Mrs Royce's father, will probably take place next week. The trial will be before a committee of nine clergymen, to be named by the presiding elder. They may be selected from anywhere in the New York Conference, but will undoubtedly be selected from the Newburgh district. The court will probably sit in this city. At this trial, the evidence shut out by Mr. Clarke in the case of Mrs. Royce will all have to be heard for the charges are so drawn that no question as to its relevancy can be raised.

If the committee finds that the charges are sustained, it will so report to the Presiding Elder, who will have to suspend Dr. Darwood till conference passes on the case. If the committee reports the charges not sustained, the matter can still be brought before conference when Dr. Darwood's character is passed on.

JUST WHAT MRS. ROYCE EXPECTED.

An ARGUS reporter called on Mrs. Royce, this morning, at her pleasant home, 113 Wickham avenue. She was suffering somewhat from the effects of a fall on the slippery pavement in front of St. Paul's Church, yesterday morning. She had not heard of the verdict rendered by the jury, and when told of its nature said: "Well, it was what I expected. All of the testimony which would have thrown light upon the doctor's conduct was excluded. Mr. Royce did not want me to go near the place, yesterday, as he said that the proceedings were not being conducted in a fair and impartial manner, and that the result was a foregone conclusion."

Barnes Hulse.

About seventy-five guests gathered at the Hulse homestead in the eastern suburbs of this city yesterday afternoon to witness the marriage of Miss Eugenia C, daughter of the late Capt. Thomas E. Hulse, to Mr. Robert Barnes, conductor on Erie trains 2 and 7.

The ceremony was performed at 4:30 o'clock by the Rev. Dr. Thomas Gordon, pastor of the Presbyterian Church.

The large double parlors were handsomely decorated with smilax and chrysanthemums and tea roses, some of which were sent from Floral Park, L. I., by the wife of Senator John Lewis Childs.

The bridal party entered the parlors as the wedding march was played by W. J. Stevers, preceded by the ushers, Messrs. Frank Brown and John D. Stivers. Then came the maid of honor, Hattie, the pretty little daughter of Mrs. Geo. Gillett; then the bridesmaids, Misses Lillie Barnes and H. Louise Curtis, and following these Mr. Barnes and Miss Hulse.

The bride wore a handsome dress of brown broad cloth, with velvet trimmings; Miss Barnes's dress was black silk, and Miss Curtis's was turquoise blue silk. The maid of honor wore a dress of white mull and carried a boquet of tea roses and carnations.

After the ceremony, and the happy couple had received the congratulations of those present, a fine wedding supper was served and the remainder of the evening was spent in dancing and singing by Mrs. Gillette and her children, and Miss Hattie Hulse delighted the guests by giving the skirt dance.

The Erie company provided Mr. Barnes with a special car attached to the Wells-Fargo Express, and shortly after 10 o'clock he and his bride were driven to the depot and started on a wedding tour. They will be absent about a week, most of which time will be spent in Washington.

The bride received many handsome and valuable presents, not only from friends present, but from others unable to attend the wedding, who sent substantial proofs of their good will.

Among the guests from out of town were Mr. and Mrs. S. J. Curtiss, Miss Curtiss, of New York; Mr. and Mrs. David A. Barnes, Miss Barnes and Mr. and Mrs. Francis Barnes of Paterson; Mr and Mrs. Charles W. Blizzard and Miss Blizzard, of Jersey City; Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Hepburn, of Binghamton; Mrs. Daniel Goldsmith, of Washingtonville; Mrs. George Hulse, of Newburg; Mr. and Mrs. George Day and Mr. Frank Hulse, of Hoboken; Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Wickham, of New Hampton;

On their return from their wedding tour Mr. and Mrs. Barnes will take up their residence with Mr. and Mrs. Gillett at the homestead.

The ARGUS offers congratulations and best wishes.

Meeting of the Board of Excise.

The Board of Excise held a meeting last evening. The license of J. J. Bryant, Hotel Elberton, was transferred to J. H. McCune.

The matter of the transfer of the Austin license to R. Wengatz was laid over until Friday night.

Rebecca Wilkinson, of Brownsvalley, Ind., says: "I have been in a distressed condition for three years from nervousness, weakness of the stomach, dyspepsia and indigestion until my health was gone. I had been doctoring constantly with no relief. I bought one bottle of South American Nervine, which did me more good than any $50 worth of doctoring I ever did in my life. I would advise every weakly person to use this valuable and lovely medicine; a few bottles of it have cured me completely. I consider it the grandest medicine in the world." Warranted the most wonderful stomach and nerve cure ever known. Sold by J. E. Mills, Middletown, N. Y.

A VETERAN'S VERDICT.

The War is Over. A Well-known Soldier, Correspondent and Journalist Makes a Disclosure.

Indiana contributed her thousands of brave soldiers to the war, and no state bears a better record in that respect than it does. In literature it is rapidly acquiring an enviable place. In war and literature Solomon Yewell, well known as a writer as "Sol," has won an honorable position. During the late war he was a member of Co. M, 3d. N. Y. Cavalry and of the 13th Indiana Infantry Volunteers. Regarding an important circumstance he writes as follows:

"Several of us old veterans here are using Dr. Miles' Restorative Nervine, Heart Cure and Nerve and Liver Pills, all of them giving splendid satisfaction. In fact, we have never used remedies that compare with them. Of the Pills we must say they are the best combination of the qualities required in a preparation of their nature we have ever known. We have none but words of praise for them. They are the outgrowth of a new principle in medicine, and tone up the system wonderfully. We say to all, try these remedies."—Solomon Yewell, Marion, Ind., Dec. 5, 1892.

These remedies are sold by all druggists on a positive guarantee, or sent direct by the Dr. Miles Medical Co., Elkhart, Ind., on receipt of price, $1 per bottle, six bottles $5, express prepaid. They positively contain neither Opiates nor dangerous drugs.

OUR ONLY DAY.

Were this our only day,
Did not our yesterdays and morrows give
To hope and memory their interplay,
How should we bear to live?

Not merely what we are,
But what we were and what we are to be,
Make up our life, the near days each a star,
The far days nebulæ.

At once would love forget
Its keen pursuits and coy delays of bliss
And its delicious pangs of fond regret
Were there no day but this.

And who, to win a friend,
Would to the secrets of his heart invite
A fellowship that should begin and end
Between a night and night?

COWBOY AND CORSET.

"I jest wish yo' had never went to Dallas. I wish yo'd staid here on the ranch an kep' on a bein yer own self, stead o' driftin off the range to the city an a makin a play to be a high toned leddy. Yo' ain't like yo' used to be, Cassie."

There was a scowl on the cowboy's face as he stood before Cassie Denton, the daughter of the owner of the Texas ranch at which he was employed. The face of the bright eyed little maiden wore a pained look as she toyed with the buckskin wrist loop which depended from the handle of the six shooter in his belt.

"I knowed jest how it would be," he continued. "When yer pop got the notion into his head that yo' must be edicated an be a leddy, I tol him it'd spile yo'. I tol him yo' never would be the same gal no mo'; that yer little head'd git turned there among the fine stock, an yo' wouldn't have no mo' use fur graded critters sich as the riders o' the ranges."

"But Bob," the girl interrupted, "I am not changed in my feelings toward you. I love you just as well as I did the day pop said I could marry you, and he sent me to school for two years just to make me fit to be your wife. It was all for your sake, Bob, and it's real bad of you to act so after I had studied so hard to make of myself a lady worthy of such a man as you. I know I'm not like I used to be. I am not rough and wild like I was once. I dress better, and I talk better. It's refinement, Bob—that's what Miss Bentley, the teacher, said, and she said that a girl without refinement was just a wart on the face of society. That's just what she said, Bob, in her own words, and I feel like crying at the way you act."

"I'd a whole lot rather see yo' a good healthy wart on the face o' society than to see yo' a dab o' bright paint on ono o' its cheeks, or a string o' no 'count beads a-hangin 'bout its neck. Style is fur them that lives in cities, Cassie, an is jest as much out o' place in here on the ranch as a cheap herdin greaser'd be out o' place in glory. I'd never believed it of yo', Cassie, that yo'd come back here with yer foretop curled up in a bunch an a corset cinched round yo'. I wouldn't, I sw'ar I wouldn't. No woman kin make a rancher a good wife that wears a fashion pack saddle an bunches up her mane like yours is bunched. I mout git over the curl business in time, but I ain't never goin to have no wife that'll cinch herself up so's she can't breathe below"—

With a scream of laughter the girl placed her hand over his mouth and checked his further speech.

"Oh, Bob, Bob, you naughty boy! Is it my poor little corset that has come between us to ward off your love? Oh, I must laugh, for it's really the funniest thing I ever heard of! Why, Bob, I could never live without a corset. It is such a support and comfort, and you know, you wicked boy, that my figure is much prettier than it was before I went to Dallas. Isn't it, now?"

She placed her hands against her waist and waltzed saucily around so that he could inspect her neat form.

"No, 'tain't. 'Tain't free an easy, like God intended it should be. If he'd 'a' wanted yo' pinched up like yo' are now, he'd 'a' built yo' that way. There'd be jest as much sense in cinchin up cows to make 'em look purty. Yo'd laugh yer eyes out to see a cow goin around here with corsets on, an, yo' hear me, it's jest as ridiculous fur a gal to do it. I'm agoin to roundup the ranges fur a gal 'at's got more savey than to wear sich monstrousities, 'r else I never will double up in matermony long as I live. Throw 'em away, Cassie, or yo' an me won't be nothin much to each other no mo'."

"Bob, I won't make a fool of myself for a little senseless whim such as yours. I'll wear what I please, and if it don't exactly meet with your ideas of propriety you can go and roundup a girl that's willing to put up with your nonsense."

The little girl was angry now, and with a spiteful flirt of her skirts she turned from him and went into the house. Her anger was like a passing summer cloud, and when in a few moments it had spent itself she ran to her room, and throwing herself on the bed burst into tears. She knew Bob Taylor loved her dearly, and rough and uneducated as he was she almost worshiped the handsome young cowboy. She would gladly have consigned the offending article of dress to the waters of the Brazos, which ran near the house, but she could not for a moment countenance such an unreasonable whim on Bob's part, and with set teeth and clinched hands she vowed that if her lover took her to wife the corset must be included in the inventory of her personal effects.

Days sped by, and Bob passed and repassed her about the house seemingly as oblivions of her presence as if she were a thousand miles away. Only once did he notice her, when, in maidenly desperation at his coldness, she asked:

"Ain't you never going to make up, Bob?"

"Not till you skin off that infernal pack saddle," was the surly reply.

Their lovers had been a fruitful and never stale topic of conversation among the pupils of Miss Bentley's select school for girls in Dallas, and in all their confidential chats Cassie had heard of but one effective method of whipping a recalcitrant lover back into the traces, "Flirt with some other fellow." Her only fear was that if she should try the experiment Bob might lose control of his temper and shoot the other fellow, and as a result he might be locked up for a long time in a cheerless prison, and the marriage be necessarily postponed until the misdemeanor was atoned for. The judge might be a cruel monster with no sympathy for young lovers and might send him into retirement for years, and she might become a wrinkled or calcimined old maid before he again breathed the air of freedom.

That would be terrible. But pshaw! Bob would never be so foolish as to puff out a human light for one little girl in a country literally running over with the prettiest girls in America. Not he. Anyhow she would risk it, and if Ben Allison of the Diamond O ranch came around and made eyes at her again, as he had done on several occasions, she would encourage him just the least bit, and then, when Bob recovered from the fit of temporary insanity into which her corset had thrown him and came to her in a penitent mood, she would throw herself into his dear arms and tell him that she never did, never would and never could love any one but him. Of course he would forgive her and kiss her tears away, and the sun of love would again burst forth and shine over them with new and exquisite luster.

Ben Allison's heart became real unruly when at his next visit to the Denton ranch Cassie met him with a welcoming smile, extended her pretty little hand and permitted him to hold it quite a little while after he had got through shaking it. After this gratifying reception his visits increased in frequency, and although, with great feminine tact, the girl kept his ardor within proper bounds she did not repulse him, and it soon became noised about among the riders of the ranges that "Ben was sure goin to pitch a matermonial rope at Cassie Benton, an the little thererbred'd soon pack his brand."

Bob noted all this, and his heart was filled with bitterness toward his supposed rival. He never cast the look of recognition upon Cassie, yet when he would see her moving about the house or corrals or galloping about the range on her pretty little pinto pony it began to dawn upon him that her corseted form was indeed far neater than that of any girl on all the ranges of the Brazos. After a time he was ready to swear that he had never seen anything one-half so handsome as that neat, graceful figure, and the uncorseted girls of his acquaintance seemed almost frightful in his eyes when he gazed upon their loose, dumpy forms. He began to harbor the impression that he had made a very pronounced fool of himself, but his stubborn nature asserted itself. He had said the corset must go, and go it must.

"That's a way up on top gal sence she got back from Dallas, ain't she, Bob?" Allison said to him one day, when they met in the corral of the Denton ranch.

"Yo' don't want to make no funny plays about that gal when I'm around," Bob hotly replied.

"I hain't never yit found out that it makes any difference who's around or who ain't around when I want to make a talk play," retorted Allison.

"Some things gits found out mighty sudden, Ben Allison, an this ain't goin to be fur from one of 'em. I want to tell yo' right now, an to holler it out plain, too, that yo' are a-nosin around this ranch too plenty o' late instead of ridin yer own ranch, an I ain't agoin to stand it no mo'."

"Mabbe you wouldn't mind tellin me what business it is o' yours whar I ride. Long as the gal's throwed yo' to one side yo' ain't got no say as to other fellers pitchin a rope at her."

"Yer a liar when yo' say she's throwed me, an yo' know it, an yo' want to hit the Diamond O trail right now, or yo' an me's agoin to bump together pow'ful hard. Jest top that hoss o' yours an work him lively away from here, or a calamity's agoin to occur right quick."

"Yo' talk mighty brave fur a castoff shoe, Bob Taylor, an yo' can't begin the bumpin business any too quick to suit me, yo' poor, worthless sneak."

That was the limit. The two men, their eyes blazing with anger, backed away from each other, drawing their six shooters as they went. The guns were thrown into position for quick work just as a slight girlish form darted around the corner of the adobe stable and sprang in front of Taylor. Allison's pistol rang out before he noted the presence of the girl, and with a scream of pain she fell senseless to the ground. The man who had fired the shot fled in terror, and Bob bent over his wounded darling, calling her by the most endearing names and begging her to live for his sake.

The form of the girl was borne into the house, and a doctor from Waco, who was fortunately there, attending a cowboy who was down with the breakbone fever, was called in.

"Is she dead, doctor?" asked Bob in tones of the most pitiable agony.

"No, only stunned. Ball struck a corset steel and glanced off. She will be all right soon, but it was a close call, my boy, and she undoubtedly saved your life."

Cassie soon recovered consciousness, and with joy in his every tone Bob confessed what a fool he had been and begged for forgiveness. Of course it was sweetly granted, and he declared that the marriage must take place just as soon as she became able to stand before the minister.

"And can I wear my corset, dear?" she coyly asked.

"Wear what saved yo' fur me? Cassie, I wouldn't have yo' throw that away fur a million dollars. Yo' kin wear two of 'em if yo' want to, an if yo' say so I'll wear one myself."—New York Telegram.

IS HIS HOME WHERE HIS HEAD LIES?

An Interesting Question as to the Residence of a Dweller on a Boundary.

A surveyor's line cuts the dwelling house of George F. Perry of Maplewood squarely in two. But the house still stands for all that, and the nightly rest of its occupants is in nowise disturbed because of the division. The line is the boundary between the town of Melrose and the city of Malden, and all of a sudden the two municipalities have set up vigorous and conflicting claims for the possession of Mr. Perry's freehold and incidentally the taxes levied thereon.

For some years past the owner of the house has been paying his taxes to Malden. Now the Melrose assessors have looked over the ground and determined that the property comes within their jurisdiction. In future they will send a bill to Mr. Perry, and, furthermore, they have presented a bill to the city of Malden for the refunding of all the money, to the amount of about $60, that he has paid into the Malden treasury. It is nip and tuck between the two places, and Mr. Perry looks serenely on. To be sure, he has a tax bill from both Melrose and Malden in either pocket, but it is tolerably certain that he will not be required to pay them both.

There is one comforting assurance to Mr. Perry, whose sympathies all go out to Malden and to whom Melrose is an alien land. His Malden citizenship is unimpeached, for the boundary line almost exactly bisects the bed in which he sleeps of nights, and that it is which determines the place where he lives. The fortunate thing about it is that his head—his thinking piece—and the pillow he peacefully on the Malden side.

Melrose surveyors, with full intent, have planted their theodolites at the boundary stone in front of the Perry mansion on Swain's Pond avenue and squinted with all their might across the fence and have figured and figured in the attempt to gerrymander Mr. Perry's bed into Melrose territory. They have metaphorically cut through his knees, his waist and his neck, but his head remains triumphantly in Malden, and the assailants, crestfallen, have limbered up their machines and hied them back to Melrose to concoct fresh schemes.—Boston Journal.

A KING FEARS ASSASSINATION.

Precautions Taken to Preserve the Life of Humbert of Italy.

In his recent hunting expedition on the royal estates near Turin King Humbert of Italy for the first time took precautions against the possible visit of an assassin. Owing to the advice and solicitation of Signor Crispi his majesty was accompanied by a trustworthy guard, who slept in front of the king's door. No one could approach the ruler without being discovered by this man.

After the murder of President Carnot the Italian premier became alarmed for the safety of his chief and persuaded him to choose a man of herculean build to accompany him at all times to serve as a shield, if necessary, in case of sudden attack. Search was made throughout the army for a man who could answer all demands made by the king and Crispi. He was at last found in the person of a marshal of carbineers—a man extraordinarily brave and muscular. He is a fellow of majestic appearance, much more so than the king, and is appreciative of the high trust placed in him. He accompanies Humbert every place and sleeps so that no one can possibly enter the king's chamber without passing over his body. He is armed as an Italian brigand might wish to be and could, unless surprised, beat off a dozen men.

Similar precautions have been taken for many years for the security of the lives of the rulers of Spain. There is a village in Spain—Espinosa by name—which has long had the honor of furnishing a certain number of courtiers, known as "Monteros de Espinosa," whose duty it is to answer for the safety of the king when he sleeps. They stand guard before the doors of the royal bedchamber in the night time so that no one can approach the door without being seen. The men of Espinosa are among the proudest in the kingdom because of this highly prized honor. No one has ever proved unworthy of his trust.—Rome Correspondent.

Selling Ice Four Years Old.

It is stated by Portland ice dealers that this has been the best year for business on the Kennebec since the great season of 1890. One man says that some ice 4 years old has been sold. This is very unusual. Ice that is 4 years old costs more to get out of the houses than it costs to cut it in the first place, for it is the ice that is at the bottom of the house and has been consolidated into a solid mass by the water flowing down from the melting cakes above and freezing these underlying cakes together. To run out a block from this is very difficult, for it is like quarrying stone from the solid ledge. It is a good thing that it can be sold if only for the cost of handling it, because it must be got out of the building somehow. Generally they bore holes in it with an auger, put in a stick of dynamite and blow the ice into fragments, which are then shoveled out.—Portland (Me.) Press.

Valuable "Material."

"They are more than mere puppets—they are the material for the social history of a great monarch and not a little of her times also." It would be difficult for an ordinary American citizen to guess what is referred to in this sentence, which occurs in an editorial article recently published in the London Standard, the principal organ of the Conservative and Unionist parties. The "material for the social history" of Queen Victoria and her times is nothing else than a collection of wooden dolls used by her majesty when she was a child.—New York Tribune.

Honors For Bayard.

It is currently reported that both Cambridge and Oxford will soon confer honorary degrees upon Embassador Bayard.

TALKS WITH MOTHERS.—No. 3.

HAPPY BABYHOOD.

Every mother wants her baby to thrive because a healthy child is a happy child. The question of how the baby shall be fed is demanding the attention, as never before, not only of the mothers in the land, but of the entire medical profession also, because it is now realized how much the health of a child can be influenced by proper nutrition during the years of babyhood. As the result of the improper feeding of the infant, the vitality of the child is impaired, and he grows up weak and puny. In these days when artificial food is being so generally resorted to for infants, the demand for a substitute for mother's milk has brought out many foods for which great claims are made. Gustav Mellin, an English chemist, was the first to discover and combine the requisite properties necessary for an artificial food, and with his discovery the rational feeding of infants commenced.

Mellin's Food is the only perfect substitute for mother's milk, and it has done more to make babies strong and healthy than anything else that has ever been invented. Mellin's Food possesses all the requisite heat and flesh producing and bone-forming constituents necessary to give a child health, vigor and vitality. Infants are exceedingly fond of it and thrive upon it when nothing else can be retained upon the stomach. If they have been weak, fretful and troublesome they become happy, healthy and active; bright eyes, rosy cheeks, firm muscles and a strong constitution are the inevitable results of using this excellent preparation. Mellin's Food being highly nutritious and easily digested, is also perfectly adapted to the wants of invalids and convalescents.

WHAT YOUR THUMB TELLS.

Square Type.

The thumb is an unfailing index of character. The Square Type indicates a strong will, great energy and firmness. Closely allied is the Spatulated Type, the thumb of those of advanced ideas and business ability. Both of these types belong to the busy man or woman, and Demorest's Family Magazine prepares especially for such persons, while volume of new ideas condensed in a small space so that the record of the whole world's work for a month can be read in half an hour. The Conical Type indicates love of beauty and art, which will find rare pleasure in the magnificent oil picture of roses, 16½ x 24 inches, reproduced from the original painting by De Longpre, the most celebrated of living flower painters, which will be given to every subscriber to Demorest's Magazine for 1895. The cost of this superb work of art was $250.00, and the reproduction cannot be distinguished from the original. Besides this an exquisite oil or water-color picture is published in each number of the Magazine, and the articles are so profusely and superbly illustrated that the Magazine is, in reality, a portfolio of art works of the highest order. The Philosophic Type is the thumb of the thinker and investigator, who will be deeply interested in those developed monthly in Demorest's Magazine, in every one of its numerous departments which cover the entire artistic and scientific field, chronicling every fact, fancy, and fad of the day. Demorest's is simply a perfect Family Magazine, and was long ago crowned Queen of the Monthlies. Send in your subscription, it will cost only $2.00, and you will have a dozen Magazines in one. Address W. JENNINGS DEMOREST, Publisher, 15 East 14th Street, New York. Though not a fashion magazine, its perfect fashion pages, and its articles on family and domestic matters, will be of superlative interest to those possessing the Feminine Type of Thumb, which indicates in its small size, slenderness, soft nail, and smooth, rounded tip, those traits which belong essentially to the gentler sex, every one of whom should subscribe to Demorest's Magazine. If you are unacquainted with it, send for a specimen copy (free), and we will admit that seeing these THUMBS has put you in the way of saving money by finding in one magazine everything to satisfy the literary wants of the whole family.

THE COMMON COUNCIL.

PROCEEDINGS OF LAST NIGHT'S SPECIAL MEETING.

Bills for Election Expenses Audited to the Amount of $2,199 21—Total Cost of the Election—Beacon Street Awards to Be Paid and Work on the Extension to Be Begun.

A special meeting of the Common Council was held last evening, for the purpose of auditing the bills for election expenses. The salaries of inspectors, ballot and poll clerks, extra police and rent of polling places amount to $2 199.21.

Each election district was provided with seventeen sets of ballots, each set containing 800 ballots, or 13 600 ballots for each election district. There are eleven districts, making a total of 149 600 ballots for the city The probable cost of printing is three dollars per thousand, or a total of $448 80 for the city. The ballots are paid for by the county but the city pays its full share of their cost, so that the election will cost the city $2,199.21 directly and $448 80 indirectly, a total of $2 648.01. This is outrageously high, a great waste of public money, but nothing like as bad as the Times figured it, last night, when, by allowing a decimal point to slip a cog, it made the total cost nearly $5 000 greater, $7,430 16

At the adjournment of the meeting the Board re-convened in special session and the following resolution was adopted:

The Mayor is hereby authorized to sign a check for $1,600, payable to the order of Ira L. Case, in payment of the commissioners in the matter of opening the Beacon street extension.

Upon motion the street committee was ordered to commence work upon the Beacon street extension at once.

AN EPIDEMIC OF DIPHTHERIA.

Two Deaths and several Persons Sick Near Cook's Falls.

Diphtheria of a malignant type has broken out in the vicinity of Cook's Falls and Butternut Grove in Delaware county.

The disease first appeared in a family named Snyder, recently removed to the neighborhood from Shinnopple. Mrs. Snyder, a woman aged forty years, died Sunday, after an illness of a few days and was buried that night. Two of her five children have the disease and are not expected to live.

At Isaac Tyler's, about a mile above Cook's Falls, a child one year old, a grandson of Mr. Tyler, died Sunday morning and was buried that night.

Two more cases in the family of James White were reported to the Board of Health, yesterday.

The greatest excitement prevails in the neighborhood as it is known that many children have been exposed to the contagion. The Snyder children were at school the day before one of them was prostrated with the disease. So fearful are the people of the contagion that it is almost impossible to get people to bury the dead.

Mr. A. P. Cook, of the Health Board, is doing all in his power to prevent the spread of the disease. The houses in which it has appeared are placed under close quarantine, and the smell of burning sulphur and carbolic acid greets the olfactories in every store and house and at the depot.

The schools near by and the churches and Sunday Schools have all been closed

"I THANK YOU. I THANK YOU"

Gratitude of a Montgomery Drunk When Let Off by the Recorder.

A Montgomery man pleaded guilty to the charge of intoxication and almost fainted when the Recorder said that sixty days in Goshen jail would about fit his case. When he was finally discharged without a fine or other punishment, his gratitude knew no bounds and although he endeavored to make a speech to the Recorder the only words at his command were: "I thank you. I thank you. I am very grateful," and he bowed himself out of the room.

CIRCUIT COURT PROCEEDINGS.

Verdict of $6,000 Against the L. and H.—A Lawyer as Counsel and Client Loses His Case—Suit for Final Settlement in a Breach of Promise Case.

The sealed verdict in the case of Hannigan against the Lehigh and Hudson Railway Company was opened by Judge Brown, yesterday morning. It gave the plaintiff a judgment for $6 000.

Judge Beattie, counsel for the company, moved for a new trial on the ground that the verdict was excessive, contrary to the law and the evidence, and would establish a dangerous precedent. He asked for a stay pending argument and appeal. The court granted the request, directing that briefs be submitted within twenty days.

Wilton Bennett, of Port Jervis, appeared as his own counsel in a suit for $150, as counsel fees, against E. C. Bierne. He quoted the old saying that a lawyer who appeared in court as his own counsel has a fool for a client. The result of the action was not calculated to break his faith in the time worn adage.

He had been employed by Mrs. Bierne to prosecute a suit against her husband for separation and alimony, but the parties settled the matter between themselves and dismissed the lawyer, who brought suit against the husband for his fee.

The defense contended that the charge was exorbitant, and that $20 would be sufficient compensation.

Judge Brown said it devolved upon plaintiff to show that the services of a lawyer were necessary.

Mr. Bennett was in court on the same footing as a grocer or dry goods dealer. The wife cannot contract debts and compel payment by the husband, unless it can be shown that he does not provide for her. The decision was that there is no cause for action.

In a suit of George Williams against Antone Meyer, a Newburgh saloon keeper, for $2 000 damages, for the breaking of his leg in a barroom rumpus, the jury returned a verdict of no cause of action.

The last case of the term was called at noon. It was a suit growing out of the recent action of Fannie Purdy, against John Flannery, of Fishkill, for $50,000 for breach of promise of marriage and its subsequent settlement.

The plaintiff claimed she was to receive $700 in settlement over and above her lawyer's fees, $710 of which had been paid, but her lawyers took $225 and she claimed a balance due her of $215, for which she brought suit.

The defense claimed that Flannery was to pay $700, and Miss Purdy was to pay her own lawyers, but that when the last payment of $200 was made Mr. Flannery made her present of an additional $50, and showed receipts and releases signed by plaintiff in presence of several witnesses to support the claim.

Mr. Flannery's counsel read to the jury a number of letters written by the plaintiff, which the Register says showed that "Miss" Purdy was a young widow, her maiden name having been Wisner, and her home in Middletown.

OBITUARY.

John W. Young.

Mr John W. Young died, yesterday, at the residence of his nephew, Charles A. Young, near Scotchtown, of heart disease, in his sixty-ninth year.

He was born on the farm where he died, and resided there all his life. He was the last of a family of five children, one of whom was the late Col. Henry B. Young, of this city. The only relatives surviving him are nephews and nieces.

The funeral will take place at his late residence on Friday, at 10:30 a. m. Interment in the Scotchtown Cemetery,

VILLAGE AGAINST RAILROAD.

The Fight at Washingtonville—The Conductor and Engineer Arrested and Will Be Tried Before a Jury

The collision of Erie employes and the men engaged in laying water pipe at Washingtonville, on Sunday, has resulted in the arrest of the conductor and engineer of the wrecking train The latter is charged with scalding some of the men in the trench.

Both men were arraigned before Justice Brooks at Washingtonville, yesterday, but the division superintendent and a lawyer appeared and demanded jury trials, which are set down for next Tuesday.

Improvements on the Erie.

The Erie is placing a system of interlocking switches at the "X A" tower, between Goshen and New Hampton, at the point known as Bush's switch. The tower will be enlarged and moved to a new stone foundation.

NEW DYES FOR COTTON.

BEAUTIFUL AND BRILLIANT COLORS THAT DO NOT FADE.

Scientific Discoveries That Lighthen Labor—A Weaver's Experience in Dyeing—Carpets Where the Color Stays as Bright as When New.

Within the last few years science has been at work in the matter of dyeing, and the results are the fast diamond dyes for cotton,—turkey-red pink, purple, orange, olive-green brown, etc. These dyes make colors so fast that even washing in strong soap-suds will not start them. If a woman is sure to get the fast diamond dyes for cotton when she wants to dye cotton, she will be able to dye absolutely fast non-fading colors that will stay until the goods are worn out.

A practical dyer, writing in the Weavers' Herald, says, "I used to dye with roots and barks, but after all my work, (and it was a tedious job,) I was not satisfied, for the colors were homely and often faded. At last I commenced to use diamond dyed, and the process is so simple and easy that the work is a pleasure I have used carpets made of rags dyes with diamond dyes three years, and the colors are still as bright as when new."

Many of the diamond dye fast cotton colors are so superior to other dyestuffs that they are used everywhere, even in the big mills and the large dye houses. Imitators of these reliable dyes may claim that their cotton dyes are "just as good," but practical tests prove the diamond is the only kind that makes colors which soap will not wash out or sunlight fade.

The diamond dyes come in nearly fifty different colors, for silk, wool, and cotton, and will dye anything, from a pair of stockings to a dress or cloak.
